

Written by six of the leading financial theorists in Britain, this book puts forward a powerful case for the freedom of the City of London and the financial industries that it holds. Free trade and innovation are the keys to future prosperity. The siren voices calling for government interference and regulation must be resisted. Authors are: Dr. Tim Evans MBA - Senior Fellow, Adam Smith Institute; Senior Fellow, The Cobden Centre Anthony Wilkinson Abhishek Majumdar Duncan Flynn is a Public Affairs consultant based on Chancery Lane. Tim Congdon is a highly respected economist, served as one of the Treasury's "wise men" and founded Lombard Street Research. A former Chief of Staff to British Prime Minister David Cameron, Alex Deane now provides counsel and advice to a range of companies and organisations as Head of Public Affairs at Weber Shandwick, the world's leading Public Relations firm About the Editor Dia Chakravarty works for the Freedom Association and is a key insider for their campaigns relating to the City of London and financial services.
