

Letter Addressed to the Abbe Raynal on the Affairs of North-America: In Which the Mistakes in the Abbes Account of the Revolution of ... (Cambridge Library Collection - Philosophy)

First published in 1782, this response to Raynals The Revolution of America (also reissued in this series) by Thomas Paine (1737-1809) has been eclipsed by Paines other work and largely overlooked. Written a year after Raynals account of the American Revolution appeared in English, Paines corrections run to nearly eighty pages. His main critique of Raynal is that his argument stresses political theory rather than actions in the real world, an approach that lacks practicality. Paine argues against Raynals assertion that the American War of Independence erupted over a tax dispute, and downplays Frances involvement in the movement for independence. However, while attacking Raynals influential work, he does so diplomatically, believing that the Abbe was writing from too great a distance to assess accurately the causes and principles of the conflict. This book has been hailed by scholars as the first of Paines publications to demonstrate his internationalist views.
